FIFTH ANNIVERSARY SEES RADIO TELEPHONE SERVICE EXTENDED NEARLY AROUND THE WORLD. When transatlantic radio telephone service was first opened to the public, on January 7, 1927, the service was limited to telephones in New York City and vicinity and those in London. A little less than five years later, on December 23, 1931, Governor Lawrence M. Judd, seated in the throne room of the former royal palace in Honolulu, and Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, in his office in Washington, D. C., spoke together to inaugurate telephone service between the Hawaiian Islands and the North American mainland, and thus brought one more island group within voice range of this continent. The map above shows how, in the intervening time, radio telephone service has extended almost around the globe. Telephone users of this country are within voice reach of nearly 35,000,000 telephones on five continents.

Open New Bids On San Gabriel Dam Building

Litigation Blocks Attempts of Supervisors to Compel Contractors to Proceed

LOS ANGELES.—(CNS)—With all indications that litigation will block attempts of the board of supervisors to compel Merritt, Chapman & Scott, San Pedro contractors, to proceed with construction of the flood control dam at site No. 2 in San Gabriel canyon, on their low bid of $1,680,000, new bids will be opened March 21.

The San Pedro firm, who were denied permission to withdraw their bid, which was $500,000 below the next lowest submitted three weeks ago, has instituted proceedings in federal court seeking to block forfeiture to the county of their $168,000 bidders' bond.

The contractors claimed the specifications on which they estimated their bid were faulty; that the specifications contained a clause requiring payment of employees under the state "prevailing wage scale law," which is now being tested in court, and that they had notified the board an "honest" mistake had been made in computing their bid too low.

Supervisors Hugh A. Thatcher, John R. Quinn and Henry W. Wright, the flood control committee, were given the support of Supervisors Frank L. Shaw and J. Don Mahaffey when they moved to secure new bids March 21, handling the litigation with the San Pedro firm independently.
